Fatal Snow Slide.

The Homer Index of the 20th gives a two-column account of a slide of rocks and snow that killed Wm. Weaver and Wm. Robson at Lundy. The slide buried the house they were sleeping in and smashed it to fragments. Robson was killed outright. Weaver remained eleven days under the debris, and died a few hours after being taken out.

Everybody is coming to Carson. J. H. Crockwell, the Photographer of Virginia City, will again install himself at Marston's Gallery, Jan. 10th, remaining during the Winter, look out for him, his work is first class.

SANTA CLAUS.

His Liking for Carson and its Vicinity.

The city of Carson has always been a prime favorite of Santa Claus.

Ever since the place was first settled by the whites, Christmas has been celebrated here with great eclat.

When the old fellow is arranging for his December tour he remarks:

"No matter what happens, I must take in Carson, even if I have to leave out Virginia City and Hawthorne."

This is why the old fellow generally strikes this town about 11 o'clock, leaving the balance of the world to be taken care of later, at about three or four in the morning.

People here make a practice of buying presents, no matter what they cost.

As long as some people can get credit they buy even if it breaks the dealer.

A Christmas gift-giving spirit seems to pervade the air about this time a year.

About three days before Christmas the farmers come in and try hard to sell turkeys at 20 cents a pound. Nobody wants them.

The day before Christmas, however, everybody lives up to the idea that it is time to buy, and then they raid the markets for birds at 30 cents a pound.

By that time the old farmers have gone back to the country disgusted, and then the Wells-Fargo company are beginning to get the high-priced California turkeys in, which are snapped up like hot cakes on a frosty morning.

There never was a time heard of when a Carsonite hesitated in buying high-priced Christmas presents. When a Carson man starts in to celebrate he goes the whole hog and calls for the pedigree of the hog.

There never was a time that a child in Carson had to go without a present of some kind.

Carson children are always well provided for on Christmas, and they don't require any newspaper relief fund.

The APPEAL regrets to say that considerable more drinking is done to the memory of the birth of Christ, than is absolutely necessary to preserve the ideas of Christianity in Ormsby county.

Egg Nog is made in too large quantities here in days like these. If the saloon keepers would mix up a little of the stuff in a common punch bowl instead of manufacturing it in the family wash-tub, the town would be just as well off in the morning.

On one or two occasions we have know men to try to break the egg-nog corner, but never seemed to make much headway.

Some people think that the drinking of egg-nog is all there is in Christmas, and sometimes this idea clings to them several days afterwards.

This is a day for everybody to drown their feelings of sorrow, pride, anomosity etc., and take on a peace-on-earth-good-will-to-men feeling for the balance of the week.

In another year there will be another Christmas and the same idea can be again carried out probably with different people.

The APPEAL will publish no paper to-morrow.

The publisher is anxious to keep right along spreading the intellectual light in dark places, but the compositors say that they want at least one day in the year to attend church, and will strike if asked to work.

The APPEAL wishes all its subscribers those who pay and those who can't and those who don't subscribe at all, a very Merry Christmas.

Guild Party To-night.

At the Armory Hall to-night the ladies of St. Peter's Guild will give one of their enjoyable dances, and delicious refreshments on the side.

Christmas should be enjoyed by all so put on your best smile and dance off your Christmas dinner.

COAST NEWS.

J. M. Adams, a journalist and politician, died at North Yakima, Wash., Sunday.

The Executive has decided to issue 3,500 tickets for the inaugural ball at Sacramento.

James Harris was instantly killed by Robert H. Majors in a saloon at Santa Cruz Monday. It is stated that Harris was intoxicated and was the aggressor.

John Loser, a tramp, has been held for the murder of Brakeman Schullenberger at Glenn's Ferry, Idaho. Loser is believed to be the one who threw the brakeman under the wheels of the train.

Stanley Clifford ran a race at Monterey Monday on against Fred Kammuermler, a bicyclist, round the 17-mile drive of Del Monte, Cal., for $500 a side. The bicyclist won in one hour and fifty-one minutes.

George Wilsen, a confidence man, who was caught operating near Helena, Mont., was taken by the citizens and ducked in the ice cold waters of Hell Gate river. He was very nearly frozen when hauled out and turned over to the Sheriff.

Ramon Lopez, who shot and killed Mary Dezerillo last October, in the streets of Santa Barbara, because she would not have anything to do with him, has been condemned to death. The case was somewhat similar to the Goldson case in San Francisco.

At the Wrong Time.

Every year some actor reaches this city about Christmas time and gets a very bad house. As a rule it is some excellent fellow who deserves a better run of luck. This time it was Mr. Lindsay an actor of splendid reputation and who gives a very conscientious, painstaking performance.

He played Ingomar in splendid shape to a poor house Tuesday night, giving as good a performance as he would have given to a crowded house. This stamps him as a man whom the public can depend upon. He was to have played Damon and Pythias last evening but there being several Christmas trees and a ball in the city Mr. Piper decided to postpone it until next Monday night.

Mr. Lindsay is a Knight of Pythias in high standing, and Ormsby Lodge No 4 is endeavoring to help him in securing a good house to witness the dramatic rendition of an incident on which the Pythian order was founded. His Damon is his greatest character and those who witness it will see a magnificent piece of genuine acting.

Naughty Fellow.

The Oroville Mercury is responsible for the following: A certain young man in town has a pair of white mice, and when he goes calling on the young ladies he has a habit of taking them with him in his pocket—they are nice things to play with! He engages the young lady in conversation and when she is quite interested he slips, unseen, one of the mice onto the floor. Of course the young man calls the young lady's attention to the mouse, and it being well educated does the rest. In this way the naughty fellow has been able to judge the comparative size of the Oroville girl's feet, and he says they are as large as these found anywhere.

A Sad Death.

On Tuesday afternoon, Lulu, the seven-year-old daughter of Geo. W. Klitzmeyer, was taken ill with typhoid pneumonia, and died yesterday afternoon.

The child was only sick thirty hours, and was stricken so heavily with the disease that the physicians gave up all hope a few hours after she was taken ill.

She was a favorite child, and the sympathy of the community is universal with the stricken parents, whose Christmas cup has thus been embittered by death.
